RESPONSIBLE CARE

INTRODUCTION

is an initiative of the chemical industry which aim at continual improvement in all aspects of health, environmental performance and safety since 1984 and has been spread all over the world. While detailed implementation of the Responsible Care programme can differ under national specification, culture and conditions, the Responsible Care is the world-wide chemical industry's commitment to continual improvement in all aspects of health, safety and communication about its activities and achievements. The programme is characterised by eight features which have been adopted and approved by the International Council of Chemical associations are responsible for detailed implementation of Responsible Care in their countries and each Responsible Care programme has its own features:
